++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Most dry, sunny, warm to hot. Drizzle north, far east.

Today:
Fine, dry and sunny, warm to hot day for the majority with temperatures highest towards Glasgow. However areas of low cloud, fog patches and drizzle across Northern Isles, far north Highlands, Hebrides, and the Northeast, perhaps reaching down east coast.

Tonight:
West staying dry with clear spells. Turning increasingly cloudy in the north and later east with some patchy light rain. Light northerly winds, occasionally freshening across eastern coasts.

Thursday:
Rather cloudy start, but sunny spells soon increasing on another fine, dry day. However temperatures significantly down from Wednesday, and feeling noticeably cooler around east coasts in brisk northerly breezes.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Settled fine, dry weather dominating the vast majority with plenty of sunshine and light winds. Temperatures not up to the levels of Wednesday, but still significantly above the seasonal averages.
